Chairman Hajvairy Group.

The United Nation Assistance Mission to Afghanistan (UNAMA) was given the task of organizing the Presidential Election in Afghanistan on October 9, 2004. Prior to these elections, a comprehensive registration programme had to be evolved for all Afghans of voting age. The International Organization for Migration (IOM) was given the responsibility of conducting out-of-country Registration and Voting (OCRV) on behalf of UNAMA.

During this operation, 740,000 (approximately) afghans living in Pakistan were registered and more than 80% of those who registered voted also. This programme was the biggest of its kind ever undertaken by an international organization in such a short span of time. The IOM had to plan and organize every aspect of election within a 60 day time frame. The IOM had multiple priorities to make this operation successful with a well reputed support provider organization. The IOM mission in Pakistan selected Hajvairy Group in the support Provider's role to accomplish this mission with a challenge. The Hajvairy Group was an established Group with a time tested reputation to deliver its services in Procurement Management, Inventory Management, Financial Management, Human Resource Management, and Transport Management.

Although the Group essentially was asked to provide Procurement, Logistic, Inventory, Warehousing and Transport Management disciplines yet they were asked to deliver varied duties at times. The Hajvairy Group under your sterling leadership always rose to the occasion and performed the mission's jobs with immaculate professional acumen and finesse. The Group organized the transport management with hundreds of vehicles with the highest standard of service ability in such a short span of time too.

Throughout the registration and election process, the Hajvairy group team had to react to sudden changes in circumstances and immediate demands for equipment. They hardly failed in fulfilling these demands.

It was an incredibly difficult mission in its scope if and if the service provider had not functioned in this manner and skill, it could have easily failed.
